WHO SHOULD PARTICIPATE?

Managing Things...Leading People is designed for supervisors, managers and executives who are looking for the insight and tools to:

- Effectively lead and motivate their team
- Deliver powerful presentations
- Develop high-impact communication skills

FACILITATOR

Dr. Denis Shackel, a specialist in developing Human Resources, successfully presents workshops designed to unlock the talents of those within management, business, and government organizations.

Denis' experience includes a full Professorship at the University of Toronto teaching educational psychology and where, in 2000, he was honoured as Professor of the Year. Denis was honoured again in 2004 and 2010 by being chosen Professor of the Year at the prestigious Ivey School of Business where he currently teaches Management Communications.

Denis is also a published author. His book, "Five Seconds at a Time" is a compelling mix of survival, leadership principles and real-life stories that inspires readers to achieve the seemingly impossible. Recently, Denis was nominated for the Order of Ontario...the highest award given by the Ontario Government of Canada.

"This was an inspiring course. It is unbelievable how much information and practical application can be portrayed in so short a time. Denis has the skill to take a group of disparate individuals and turn them into leaders and high performing team members."
